

Sculpture of the relationship between inorganic matter, organic matter and human society

The heat generated by the computer's operation provides the ideal temperature for goldfish and plants to survive, while the growth of algae helps to cool the central processor to keep the computer running smoothly.

Sealed glass cabinet

The heat generated by the computer's operation provides the ideal temperature for goldfish and plants to survive

while the growth of algae helps to cool the central processor to keep the computer running smoothly.

